

Client: El Tucán
Date: August/ September 2015 Issue
Outlet: Miami Herald INDULGE
Circulation: 85,000

INDULGE

the local LAUNCHING NOW

Wheels Up

If the summer heat has you too lazy to leave the comfort of your AC—fear not! Two Miami favorites are taking their show on the road. First, feed your fashion fix with the Saks Fifth Avenue Bal Harbour mobile van, a Mercedes-Benz sprinter filled with everything from Alexander McQueen to Zac Posen (and all those in between!) The appointment-only mobile fashion unit (call 305-744-1580 to schedule) delivers personal shopping, styling, beauty consultations and tailoring services to client homes, workplaces or hotel rooms. But what good is on-demand fashion without the body to pull it off? Enter Barre Motion's new Barre-Cierge service. The Miami Beach-based studio will send an instructor, equipped with Barre Motion's playground balls, Thera-bands, stretching straps, music and a mat, to lead an hour-long, private barre class at almost any requested location. Barre-Cierge classes, which focus on exert-stretch sequences of intense, precise micro-movements, start at $250. Barre Motion Miami, 1560 Lenox Avenue, Miami Beach; 305-534-8087; barreemotionmiami.com or email julie@barremotionmiami.com.

Havana Nights

The days of glitz, glamour and live entertainment will be alive and well this September with the opening of El Tucán, a Latin-inspired cabaret set to feature "the best selection of live Latin Tropical and International entertainment." Interiors by famed New York designer Robert McKinley (think Surf Lodge and Sant Ambroeus) will evoke the spirit of Havana, with brass and gold-colored palms, crushed velvet and Venetian chandeliers alongside trompe l'oeil murals by Cuban artist Happy Menocal. The Brickell space will also house a big band-inspired 12-piece orchestra curated by Grammy award-winning producer Marlow Rosado and feature Caribbean and South American fare (and, of course, libations) by chef Jean Paul Lourdes. Late-night dancing will be strongly encouraged. El Tucán, 1111 SW First Avenue, Miami; eltucanmiami.com.

The latest addition of Miami Heat coach Erik Spoelstra, who launched event space Sp... in September. Inspired by Paris, Bosh's new space will showcase items from around the world, sourced from local vendors for parties and events. Bosh is acting as a sponsor for Sparkle and Shine at Beach; Sparkle...

Havana Nights

The days of glitz, glamour and live entertainment will be alive and well this September with the opening of El Tucán, a Latin-inspired cabaret set to feature "the best selection of live Latin Tropical and International entertainment." Interiors by famed New York designer Robert McKinley (think Surf Lodge and Sant Ambroeus) will evoke the spirit of Havana, with brass and gold-colored palms, crushed velvet and Venetian chandeliers alongside trompe l'oeil murals by Cuban artist Happy Menocal. The Brickell space will also house a big band-inspired 12-piece orchestra curated by Grammy award-winning producer Marlow Rosado and feature Caribbean and South American fare (and, of course, libations) by chef Jean Paul Lourdes. Late-night dancing will be strongly encouraged. El Tucán, 1111 SW First Avenue, Miami; eltucanmiami.com.

Mini Me

Lululemon continues its fitness takeover with iviva, a line of activewear designed for girls sizes 4-14 and a new store/studio space set to open this fall in South Miami. The line, co-created with feedback from young girls themselves, transitions from studio or gym to school and free time and features in Lululemon's much-beloved "child's hemming" service that helps as the child grows. The store also features clinics and other free-to-the-public services to help girls set goals and stay motivated. iviva.com. 305-665-5627.